Subject: EOCCG Update 23: Planned Truck Demonstration

Good evening,

Ottawa Police Service continues to do excellent work to return the downtown core to normalcy. A map of the new secured area is attached, which represents a reduced footprint. There will still be police check points in place and so traffic impacts will persist for those travelling into and through the area. Ottawa Police Service will continue to work with the City's Traffic Services to assess whether the secured area can be further reduced in size – more information will be shared tomorrow. The EOC will also be closely monitoring impacts to essential workers and those attending medical appointments.

As noted yesterday, it will be important for Ottawa Police Service to ensure that protesters do not return to the City next weekend. Right now, it does not appear that groups are targeting Ottawa but the overall movement persists and so Police remain vigilant (note: even today, a small group of protesters re-convened at the corner of Booth/Sir John A Macdonald Parkway). For this reason, the City's State of Emergency is expected to continue in the short-term.

Council will convene on Wednesday and the Ottawa Police Services Board will meet on Thursday. At Council, a number of motions will be tabled to provide relief and assistance, as well as help attract customers back to downtown businesses and restaurants. These include:

- A targeted property tax deferral program for eligible retail businesses and restaurants in the affected areas (Harder/King)
- Funding to help the most impacted business districts program and market their destinations (El-Chantiry/Fleury)
- Support for the Ottawa Music Industry Coalition to offer local musical performances in the impacted neighbourhoods (Dudas/Leiper)
- An expansion of the no-fare transit service measure that will include all routes that bring customers to and from the affected areas, including Line 1 (Hubley/McKenney)
- No-charge parking for a month on-street and at City garages in the impacted areas (Tierney/Gower)
